Visit Skene Manor for a wonderful tour

Skene Manor is a Victorian Gothic-style mansion in Whitehall, New York. The manor has been restored and preserved by Whitehall Skene Manor Preservation, Inc. The manor's slate roof has six dormers and decorative pediments in the peak of the main tower. The interior reflects the original Victorian style, although some alterations were made in the 1960s. There are three stories, each 3000 square feet in area, ten bedrooms, and three dining rooms. Seven of the original eight fireplaces (one marble and six slate) remain in the home.

Followed by Lunch in Skene Manor's Tea Room

Visit Rogers Island in Fort Edward

The Rogers Island Visitors Center opened to the public on July 6, 2001. With thousands of visitors from the U.S. and many foreign countries. Exhibits at the Visitors Center tell the story of the Fort Edward area, from the earliest Native Americans that lived here as long ago as 1000 BC with artifacts and exhibits detailing native American occupation. The visitors center is the home base of the Adirondack Community College Archeological Field School.
